In the oil and gas industry, a "floorman" (or floor hand) is an entry-level position on a drilling rig. Here are some key roles and responsibilities:

1. *Assisting the Driller*: Supporting the driller in various tasks, such as making connections, tripping pipes, and handling drilling equipment.
2. *Equipment Maintenance*: Performing routine maintenance and repairs on drilling equipment, pipes, and tools.
3. *Pipe Handling*: Handling and moving drill pipes, casing, and other equipment on the rig floor.
4. *Safety Procedures*: Following strict safety protocols to prevent accidents and ensure a safe working environment.
5. *Team Collaboration*: Working closely with other crew members, such as the driller, derrickhand, and roughnecks, to achieve drilling objectives.
6. *Monitoring Operations*: Observing drilling operations and reporting any issues or concerns to the driller or other supervisors.
7. *Physical Labor*: Performing physically demanding tasks, such as lifting, bending, and climbing, in a fast-paced and dynamic environment.

The role of a floorman requires physical stamina, attention to detail, and the ability to work well under pressure.
