Additional Information

Roles and Responsibilities	Additional Skills/Certification
-----------------------------------	--

I recently completed my Master's degree in Petroleum Engineering from TU Clausthal, Germany, where I developed a strong academic and practical foundation in reservoir engineering, drilling engineering, and production optimization. During my studies, I also gained hands-on research experience in the adsorption of gases on different material samples, working with experimental setups to analyze gas-solid interactions and evaluate adsorption behavior under varying conditions. This research strengthened my analytical skills, data interpretation abilities, and understanding of laboratory-based petroleum and energy-related processes. Prior to my master's studies, I worked as a Trainee Petroleum Engineer at Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Oil & Gas Company Limited (KPOGCL), Pakistan, from 2016 to 2018. During this period, I was involved in field and office-based activities related to exploration and production operations, including exposure to drilling operations, reservoir data analysis, and basic production monitoring. This experience provided me with practical insight into upstream oil and gas operations and enhanced my ability to work in multidisciplinary engineering environments. With a combination of international education, industrial training, and research experience, I am motivated to contribute effectively to the energy sector, particularly in roles related to reservoir engineering, gas storage, and sustainable energy technologies.
