Here is your 200-word copyable paragraph on your rig duties as a doctor: I am working as a rig doctor on an oil and gas drilling site where I am responsible for providing primary healthcare services to all crew members working in remote and high-risk environments. My duties include daily medical rounds, assessment and treatment of work-related injuries, management of acute illnesses, and stabilization of emergency cases until evacuation is arranged. I maintain a fully equipped medical bay, ensure availability of essential medicines, and regularly check emergency response equipment such as oxygen cylinders, defibrillators, trauma kits, and stretchers. I also conduct pre-employment and periodic medical examinations, fitness-to-work assessments, and drug and alcohol screening as per company policy. Another important part of my role is health education. I arrange toolbox talks on topics such as heat stress, dehydration, hygiene, ergonomics, and prevention of communicable diseases. I work closely with the HSE department to participate in emergency drills, incident investigations, and risk assessments. Accurate medical record keeping, reporting of occupational illnesses, and maintaining confidentiality are also my responsibilities. Working as a rig doctor requires strong clinical skills, quick decision-making, teamwork, and the ability to remain calm in emergencies while ensuring the wellbeing of the entire rig crew.
